

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (WDNR),
in cooperation with the

Northern Great Lakes Visitor Center

presents...

Snow Tracking Carnivores
& Other Mammals
in Northern & Central Wisconsin.

This training is especially intended for those interested in participating in the Wisconsin Volunteer Carnivore Tracking Program--a program used to help estimate abundance of gray wolves and other forest carnivores within the state.

Participants will be trained on the identification of tracks of most medium and large land mammals in the state, methods of measuring tracks, use of forms, methods for conducting surveys, and will be tested in their ability to identify 25 state mammals by tracks. Use of field guides, and rulers will be encouraged.

Saturday
November 7, 2009

Persons participating in the training program will eventually be also expected to attend a class in wolf ecology, but the track training will allow them to get started as volunteer carnivore trackers.
